

Junior Prom: two weeks away and counting!

Prom is almost here! The big event is now just two weeks away and the junior class students are feeling the pressure. Students are trying to get last minute things finished while others are still in the search of their perfect dress. The anxiety is enormous and it is starting to show.

Junior Cody Fowler asked, "What's going on with prom?! I heard we had to stay the whole day of school!" This statement is false. Although Friday May 14 is not a legal half-day of school, juniors only need to stay half of the day to be eligible to attend prom. Those who need to leave early to begin their prom preparations can leave at 11 a.m. with a note from their parents.

Others wonder, "Why haven't I been able to vote for prom song and king and queen?" The answer to this question is that junior class president Katelyn Holbrook is doing her best to get around to all of the advisories with the ballots. However, she has to wait for each advisory to get his or her votes completed as to ensure that no one is cheating and this is time consuming.

Students anxious to get their vote in should see her for their ballot, but it is promised that she will get to everyone's advisory eventually. Once all of the nominations have been calculated another ballot will be passed around with the top three girl votes and top three guy votes and from these students will vote on who they would like to be kind or queen.

Soon enough all of the worry will be over and students will be attending the night of their lives. Be sure to see Katelyn Holbrook or Mr. Reale to purchase a $35 ticket to the prom labeled, "Make A Dream." When you get your ticket you will also get information about the photographer and a pamphlet for Devine Designs.

For all students scrounging to find a place for your corsage and boutonniere, this is the place to go. Also, grab a contract that needs to be filled out and handed in by May 7 or your prom dream will be left to your sleep.

Bodley's SADD-est week set for May 3-10

From May 3 through May 10, 2010, GRB's Shamus Heagerty Memorial Chapter of SADD will be focusing on raising consciousness of students and staff about the destructive decisions that can change, that can shatter, that can destroy our lives or the lives of others.

Not all victims of automobile accidents die. Many survive with life-altering injuries. On Wednesday, May 5, as this year's alternate Grim Reaper Activity, SADD members will model the difficulties faced by adults and students, volunteers, who have survived "accidents" with a variety of compromising "injuries."

Observe how they try to get around the building, to participate in classes, and to live a normal life with varying degrees of difficulty.

Some accidents may be the result of our own destructive decisions or those of others, regarding the use of drugs, such as alcohol. The results are the same. We all need to "Think Twice" before making destructive decisions.

Framing this event will be the Gone4Ever exhibit, beginning on Monday, May 3, through Monday, May 10, in the GRB LGI. Presenting the lives and deaths of several Central New York young people - through the news media over the past six years we all heard about their disasters - the exhibit, put together by the Onondaga County Sheriff's Department, will also be open to the public of the surrounding communities.

During school hours GRB student members of SADD will provide a Guard of Honor for the management of the exhibit. Teachers will receive a list of students and their times. Teachers, especially Advisors, are encouraged to bring their classes or Advisory groups, to view the exhibit and to discuss it. Discussion materials for all the events of this SADDest week will be made available. After school hours the exhibit will be open to the public from 2:30 to 8:30 pm

Monday, May 10, the SADDest Week at GRB will end with a rock concert by the national touring group, Take Control, USA. Their among others, especially the young.

SADD will provide to teachers a pre- and post-concert discussion page. The concert will take place from 12:45 to 2:15 pm in GRB's Main Gymnasium. The academic day will follow the same schedule as for the Navy Band Concert earlier in this year.

With the sponsorship of GRB's SADD and the support of the GRB Advisory Management Team, the cost of the concert has been borne totally by a donation of the Shamus Heagerty Memorial Scholarship Fund and the SADD fundraiser during March. Shamus's mother, performances in many of the surrounding school districts - Cornell City School District, Cattaraugus-Little Valley, Elmira Heights, and South Lewis, to name a few - have been very well received by both students and the adult staffs and communities.

Some accidents may be the result of our own destructive decisions or those of others, regarding the use of drugs, such as alcohol. The results are the same. We all need to "Think Twice" before making destructive decisions.

In this ninety-minute concert the band, led by Mr. Phil Accardi, engages the audience in addressing the issues of drugs of choice and their destructive effects: the death of one of their members; and their acceptance of their purpose to raise awareness and commitment

Mrs. Lisa Heagerty Munger, his sister, Ms. Elaina Heagerty, and his classmate-GRB alumnus, Mr. Tom Greco, manage the Fund. The Latin Club is covering the traveling expenses of the band.

GRB's Shamus Heagerty Memorial Chapter of SADD is sponsoring these events during the week of May 3 through 10, so that GRB's SADDest week may be followed by a most joyous one, with the Prom the following weekend.

Opinion

What's not to like about music?

By Travis Cowart

Everybody loves music. I don't believe there is a single person who doesn't enjoy some kind of music. Sure, they enjoy different types of music and dislike others, but regardless there are still at least some types of music that are pleasant to those people's ears. What is it that makes music so pleasant to others? Why do we listen to it in the first place?

Literature says something, visual arts show something, but music only seems to show or say itself. I am not saying that literature and visual arts are nothing compared to music, but music feels like it is the most intimate and true art.

The answer is simple: Scientifically, the nucleus accumbens, the part of the brain that releases dopamine to regulate our moods and coordinate our movements, is implicated in our experience of music. In other words, music stimulates the brain, giving you the relaxation and goose bumps we all know and love.

Music is also listened due to its therapeutic opportunities. According to the American Music Therapy Association, music is "curative and restorative for a wide variety of conditions, even as aid to help with physical rehabilitation and assisting those with disabilities. Music therapy can ease the pains of chemotherapy, lower anxiety or lift a depressed person's spirit, and as you may already know, help insomniacs get to sleep." Sure it can't cure cancer, but it has its own miracles. It relieves aches and symptoms, and augments a patient's joy and well-being.

Overall, music is an aid, whether you are healthy or not. It pleases the mood of the listener, and naturally, people like to be in a good mood. It can lift our spirits and carry us through the days ahead. Music, whether you look at it scientifically or not, stimulates the senses and leads to better moods and helps your overall well-being. So when you are singing along to your favorite tunes, be sure to think about why you love music so much, as well as how good it is for you.

Read for enjoyment, you'll be glad in the long run

By Ben Davis

Reading is a great pastime to have and is beneficial in many different ways. With so many new advancements in technology, distractions are becoming more and more frequent. People rarely sit down to just read a good book. The many great benefits presented from reading should influence some to consider picking up a book instead of going to grab the TV remote or getting on the computer. Reading exercises your mind, improves your ability to focus, and increases your knowledge.

Books are a fun way to make you use your brain, and by thinking you exercise your mind. Reading helps to improve your vocabulary. In elementary school you learned the definitions of words you didn't know by reading the context of other words in the sentence. Reading provides the same benefits. Also while reading new books, especially as they become more challenging, you will find yourself coming across many new words you've never heard of. This will improve your vocabulary immensely.

Reading also improves your memory. Many studies show that if you don't use your memory, you lose it. Thinking games like crossword puzzles help prevent Alzheimer's. Although reading is not a game, it stretches your memory in a similar way. Remembering all of the characters, details, plot lines, themes and events greatly exercises your brainpower.

Improving concentration, focus and discipline are a few more benefits of reading. Reading a good book, unlike magazines or newspapers, requires you to focus on what you are doing for a long period of time. Books give a complete story and since you have to concentrate to read, you will get better at concentrating when you read more. It also improves your discipline because with all the distractions of today, very few people schedule book reading time every day. Making time to read is something we should all do and adding a reading time to your daily schedule and sticking to it will improve discipline.

Another great benefit is that reading actually reduces stress and provides relaxation more than television. People who get home and immediately turn on the television to relax aren't really relaxing that much. TV is too full of loud commercials and fast moving images to be truly relaxing. Also the news usually adds stress from all of the crime and problems in the world. If you are trying to relax just sit down and pick up a good book.

With all the great and diverse benefits from reading, it is important to read whenever you get the chance and just need some time to relax. The next time you're bored instead of flipping on the TV, try picking up a good book. If you're already bored you might as well read and gain some benefits at the same time.

"Reading also improves your memory. Many studies show that if you don't use your memory, you lose it. Thinking games like crossword puzzles help prevent Alzheimer's. Although reading is not a game, it stretches your memory in a similar way."

Nightmare on Elm Street returns to the big screen today

It's Friday and that means there are new movies playing at the theaters. This weekend there are three new movies coming out. These movies include Please Give, A Nightmare on Elm Street, and Furry Vengeance.

Please Give is a comedy starring Rebecca Hall, Amanda Peet, and Elizabeth Keener. The plot of this movie revolves around a couple who moves to New York City. This couple wants to expand their apartment, but find that it is very complicated when they talk with their elderly neighbor. Will the couple be able to overcome the hardships and expand their apartment?

A Nightmare on Elm Street is a remake of the 1980's horror/thriller. This movie stars Jackie Earl Haley, Kyle Gallner, and Katie Cassidy. This movie is about the disfigured serial killer Freddie Krueger, who haunts a group of young people in their dreams. These people are so terrified that they do not fall asleep so they will not have Freddie in their dreams. The original was plenty scary, one can only imagine what they will do with modern special effects.

Furry Vengeance is a family comedy that stars Brendan Fraser, Ricky Garcia, and Brooke Shields. The plot of this movie is that a real estate developer wants to cut down a forest in Oregon to make room for some new homes. He comes to find out that the woodland creatures living there do not want their home destroyed. These creatures cause many problems for the real estate developer.

While the weather this weekend is supposed to be nice, a trip to the movies in the evening might be the perfect way to cap off a day away from school by checking out one of these great new movies. As always, check your local listings for times and locations of the movie you would like to view.

Playoffs in full swing; NFL draft produces surprises

By Nick Millard

The big news in the last week was the NFL Draft. For the first time in the history of the NFL, the draft was put on primetime television. The seven round set-ups were stretched along a three-day span, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. The first round went according to plan, as the Ram's selected Oklahoma Sooner quarterback Sam Bradford with the first overall pick. The Lions followed up with the second pick with the Heisman finalist, monster Ndamukong Suh, who many believe as the best defensive tackle to come out of college in the modern era.

Rounding out the top three was the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, who picked Sooner DT Gerald McCoy. McCoy was overshadowed by the success of Suh, however his name came by storm, as many draft predictions had him going ahead of Suh. The only big surprise of the first round was the Denver Broncos trading up to get All-American quarterback Tim Tebow. Tebow is strongly considered as one of the greatest college quarterbacks to play the game, however because of the system he played in at Florida, and certain flaws to his throwing technique, many NFL scouts believed he was not a good fit for an NFL type system.

Two players did not quite have the luck of Tim Tebow; Jimmy Clausen and Colt McCoy were both left waiting, as they were passed up on from their original draft predictions. Clausen, who was projected to go as early as the top 10, managed to find himself undrafted after the first round and was finally picked 48th overall by the Carolina Panthers. Colt McCoy, on the other hand, was left waiting till the 85th overall pick to earn his spot on an NFL roster. To make it all worse, the Cleveland Browns drafted him... what a bad weekend for a projected early second round pick.

The first round of the NBA playoffs are wrapping up this weekend, and so far no huge surprises have overwhelmed the basketball world. In the Eastern Conference, the top seeded Cavaliers shut down the Chicago Bulls Tuesday night with a 4-1 series win. The second seeded Orlando Magic swept the Charlotte Bobcats in their opening series, 4-0. There are upset alerts looming at the top of the bracket, as third seeded Atlanta dropped another game Wednesday night, and are now down in their series 3-2 to the Milwaukee Bucks. The Boston Celtics, whom many experts believe are becoming to old to win another NBA title, thoroughly shut down the Miami Heat in a 4-1 series domination.

The Western Conference has had their fair share of drama up to this point in the playoffs. The top seeded Los Angeles Lakers, who were many people's favorites to win it all, have found themselves with just a 3-2 series lead over the Oklahoma City Thunder heading into game six Friday night. The second seeded Dallas Mavericks have found themselves on the losing end of the spectrum more times than not in the opening round against their instate rival San Antonio. The Spurs currently are holding onto a 3-2 series lead going into game six. Third seeded Phoenix Suns and fifth seeded Utah jazz both own 3-2 series leads over their opponents. The series should conclude within the next four days, and round two should have many exciting match-ups.

The opening round of the NHL playoffs concluded Wednesday night with a monster upset as the eighth seeded Montreal Canadiens defeated the Washington Capitals 1-0, for a 4-3 series stunner. Other upsets around the league included the Boston Bruins shutting down Ryan Miller and the Buffalo Sabres in a 4-2 series win. The Philadelphia Flyers made their name clear as they destroyed Martin Brodeur and the New Jersey Devils. The lower seed prevailed again as fifth seeded Detroit beat the up and coming Phoenix Coyotes in a 4-3 series win. Aside from those series, all went according to plan as the NHL playoffs kick off their second round Thursday night as the San Jose Sharks take on the Philadelphia Flyers.

With playoffs in full swing, and the NFL getting back into the thick of things, sports are as exciting as ever. It is highly likely that all you sports fanatics will get a taste of Tiger Woods next week, as he is working his way back into the PGA tour regular season. Tiger is playing in the Quail Hallow Championship over this weekend, hoping to regain respect, pride, and to get back into his winning ways.

NHL's Eastern Conference features two intriguing match-ups

Round one is over and the tables are all set for round two to begin. The Eastern Conference was filled with many upset with only one dominant seed winning their series. Perhaps one of the biggest upsets was the eighth seed Montreal Canadiens beating the number one seed Washington Capitals.

The Montreal Canadiens now advance to take on Sidney Crosby and the Pittsburgh Penguins in the second round. A key to the Canadiens success in round one was their outstanding goalie, Jaroslav Halak, putting up over 50 saves in just one game, and over 40 in most of the others. He will definitely have to continue playing his A game as the Penguins, and possibly one of the NHL's best players, Sid the kid Crosby, posted 11 points in just the first round. While Montreal may have outstanding goaltending, with Alexi Kovalev hurt, they just do not have the offence to keep up with the Penguins. The regular season shows that, as Pitt won three out of the four times they met, by at least two goals or more.

The next Eastern Conference series in the second round pits the Boston Bruins vs. the Philadelphia Flyers. The Flyers are fresh off upsetting the number two seed New Jersey Devils. Not only did they shut down the Devils offence completely, but they found ways to beat one of the best goalies of all time, Martian Brodeur. However, Brodeur is not in his prime and is not as good as he once was. The Boston Bruins have the best defense in the league, giving up the least amount of goals in the regular season. On top of that, young goaltender Tuukka Rask has brought his A game into the playoffs as he was a big contributor to the Bruins success against the Buffalo Sabres. While the Boston Bruins had a slow start to the regular season, they are beginning to peak now, and to add to that, one of their best players, Marc Savard, is coming back from being injured and will now play in the second round. Both teams have won two out of the four games against each other in the regular season so this series will definitely will be an exciting one as it unfolds.

Fulton's Dan Bolster got out of the way just in time to avoid being hit in action from Wednesday's game against Mexico. The Raiders play host to Jamesville-Dewitt at 3 p.m. Saturday in their next start. (Taylor Harvey)

THIS WEEK IN RAIDER SPORTS

Today: Softball @ J-D (4:30); Baseball vs. J-D (4:30); Tennis vs. Homer (4:30).

Sat. May 1: Softball @ Oswego Tourney (TBA); JV boys lax @ Oswego (10 a.m.); Track @ Oswego County Invitational.

Mon. May 3: JV boys lax @ Jordan-Elbridge (4:30); Girls lax vs. Chittenango (JV-5:00/V-6:30).

Walk-off hit lifts Raiders past J-D Rams

Laxmen hang tough in loss

Fulton played a well-fought game against the Homer Trojans last night as the Raiders lost in a 12-8 final score. In the last match-up the Trojans defeated Fulton 19-3, so the Raiders goal for this game was to close the gap and they did. It was a game that the Raiders could have won, but they fell just short once again.

Unlike the previous match-up when Homer was quick off the mark, Fulton was playing well and looked to be in the game down just 3-2 after the first quarter. The second quarter was similar to the first for the Trojans as they scored another three goals, but the Raiders managed a lone goal in the quarter. This gave Fulton a 6-3 halftime deficit.

The second half was almost identical to the first half in the scoring column. It was the exact same for Homer as the Trojans recorded three goals in each quarter of the game. The Raiders scored two goals and three goals respectively in the third and fourth quarter to fall just shy of the win.

This game was a shocking one for the Raiders as they found themselves in the game to win, but it seemed as though Fulton was always a few steps behind. Homer was always just a bit ahead of the Raiders and Fulton could not gain full advantage for a comeback. This was a tally in the loss column, but it might be a moral victory for Fulton as they only lost by four goals to a top league opponent.

The juniors led the way for the Raiders as Brett Williams had three goals and two assists on the day and Colin Shannon recorded two goals and one assist. Fellow junior, and defenseman Don Watson had one goal and one assist. Seniors Jack Howard and Bobby Earnshaw each scored one goal, and Howard added one assist. Senior goaltender Eric Belair stood strong between the pipes as he recorded 17 saves.

There is no time for rest as Fulton plays tomorrow at home against Jordan-Elbridge at 3 p.m. This is a game that the team knows it has a chance of winning. The Raiders have come out of the gates for the second half of the season with a new fire in their eyes; it is as if they are a different team. As a result, Fulton will look to get back on the right track against the Eagles, hopefully the winning track.

By Eric Belair

A flair for the dramatic was there for all to witness on Thursday when the Lady Raider softball team staged a pair of late inning rallies en route to a big 5-4 win over Jamesville-Dewitt. Avenging a previous one run loss to the Rams, Fulton improved to 5-3 on the season while sending J-D home at 6-3 in league play and 6-5 overall.

The Rams looked poised for a season sweep when they tallied single runs in the second, third and fourth innings to build a 3-1 lead. A fourth run was cut down at the plate early on, and it loomed large in the game's final tally.

Fulton finally got on the board in the fourth inning before exploding in the sixth inning with three runs, highlighted by starting hurler Jessica Palmitesso's two run triple. Palmitesso struck out five before yielding to sophomore Lindsey Larkin.

Clinging to a 4-3 advantage, the Raiders saw J-D rally in the top of the seventh to knot the count. Larkin, the game's winning hurler in relief, calmly delivered the deciding blast to score Alicia Vann from second after Vann had forced a poor throw on a play at first base that resulted in an extra base for Fulton. Larkin's drive would normally have been a home run for the sophomore standout, but was instead a walk-off single to end the game.

The girls will now face a busy Saturday as they travel to Oswego to take part in the Buccaneer Tournament. Featuring an all-Oswego County lineup, the Raiders meet Pulaski at 4 p.m. before facing either Oswego or Mexico in the championship or consolation round at 6 p.m. The tournament will be played at Legends Field in Oswego.

Tennis falls at Cortland

Cortland proved to be too much for the Raider tennis team on Thursday as the Purple Tigers improved to 7-1 on the season behind a 5-2 win over Fulton. The Tigers swept the doubles competition en route to victory with Fulton's only points coming from singles players Eric Naioti and Richard Reeschke. Naioti won 6-3, 6-3 at second singles while Reeschke rallied from a 4-6 first set loss to prevail 6-3, 6-4 at fourth singles.

Fulton's second doubles tandem of Nate Deavers and Mitch Lalik lost a tough three set match at second doubles for the Raiders, who will take on Homer today at 4:30 on the Fulton courts.

Raider Sports

There was a great turnout for an even more outstanding cause on Thursday night at Bodley's Coaches vs. Cancer Fundraiser. Not only did the community come together and show support with their wallets toward the Golisano Children's Hospital, but also more importantly the three G. Ray Bodley High School students suffering from cancer now know how many people are rooting for them to beat the terrible disease. If you were not able to attend last night's festivities but would still like to assist an amazing cause you can log on to www.upstate.edu/gch/kids/childlife/donations.php and donate online. The Golisano Children's Hospital accepts all sorts of donations, not only cash but also toys and anything the patients may need. On the site you will find a link to the "wish list" which gives a detailed list of things that the suffering patients could really use. Once again a great thanks goes out to all those who attended last night and those who helped support a very worthy cause. In the photo above Mr. J. ## Track set for Oswego County Invitational

It will be a big weekend for the Fulton boys track team as tomorrow the Raiders will make their annual trip to Oswego to compete in the Oswego County Invitational. Teams from throughout Oswego County will come from all over to compete for bragging rights. Over the last few years Fulton has had numerous champions who could rightfully call themselves the best in the County. This year Fulton could see just as many, if not more invite champions.

The Raiders will look for strong performances from a lot of the sprinters. So far the 4x100-meter relay team has had many different members, all capable of running quick enough to assert themselves as number one in the County. John Strong will face Rockney Burns in perhaps one of the fastest 400-meter hurdles in Oswego county history. Over spring break the two raced, with Strong out leaning Burns at the line, but things could be different this time! The jumping duo of Nick Millard and Donnie Wilmont have a strong chance of winning the long jump events. Although there hasn't been team scoring for the last couple of years, they may change it this year to see who the best team in the greater Oswego area is.

After this invite, the boys will rest up for a big duel meet on Wednesday against Cortland and East Syracuse-Minoa.
