Make safety a priority on Halloween night

By Lexi Abelgore

Ghosts and goblins and ghouls, oh my! It is that time again to dress up like your favorite character and to load up on candy. Whether you are going out trick-or-treating or attending a party, Halloween can be a lot of fun for everyone. However, according to CBS News, Halloween is one of the three most dangerous holidays. While you are out enjoying yourself remember the following safety tips.

1) Do not go out alone.

Being off by yourself makes you more vulnerable and if there is a predator out there, you are more likely to be targeted if you are alone. If you are going trick or treating this weekend, go in a small group and do not split up.

2) Be visible.

It is going to be a dark night on Friday. When you are walking the streets in search of candy, carry a flashlight and stay in well-lit areas. If you do not feel like holding a light all night, stick some glow tape or a light reflector on your candy bag or somewhere on your costume. It is not safe to wear an all-black costume because you will blend in with the night.

Do whatever you have to do to make sure that cars can see you. While a flashlight may not match your costume, neither will a broken leg if you are hit by a car. Also, remember to look both ways and use sidewalks.

3) Check out your candy before you eat it.

Stories of razor blades or broken glass in candy bars seem to be more myth than reality, but it can happen and you do not want it happening to you. Look over all of your candy for rips or tears in the wrapping and dispose of candy that appears to have been opened.

Also, stay away from homemade goods that are given to you. Only eat factory-wrapped treats to assure that they are safe. Stick to neighborhoods that you are familiar with and do not go into strange houses.

If you are going anywhere on Friday, you must be extra careful when driving. There will be hundreds of kids out on the streets and honestly, most of them will not be paying attention to you in your car. So turn on your headlights and watch out for stragglers.

Halloween is a fun time for everyone who chooses to participate in it. Be safe and follow these tips. Do not let this Halloween be your last.

School fights: a bad idea on many levels

By Maggie Williams

Many high school students look at fist fighting as a way to express their anger toward someone or something. Fist fighting is almost an act of entertainment for the students who are not involved in the fight.

Often times, fist fights attract crowds of cheering students who do not take the student getting attacked into account. Fighting will never solve anything and can lead to major consequences.

Not only can the fighters get in trouble, but the people watching and the people who take the time to record the fight just so they can watch it later and/or show it to other people can also be penalized. Suspension is the most common consequence in high school.

Out of school fights can have worse consequences such as a criminal penalty, which will go on your permanent record. These criminal penalties can impact a person’s ability to find a job or even travel. The aggressor may have to pay big money if they injure the person they are fighting. It is possible that the aggressor will have to pay for the medical expenses of the person they hurt. Again, fighting is not worth it in any way, shape or form.

Although most students think that walking away from a fight is the weak way to go, that is the best way to deal with the situation. Another tactic one could use is to try to calm down the other person by attempting to talk things out.

Believe it or not, there are ways to fix things without throwing punches and harming one another. Your problems with certain people do not have to be known to the public. Solve the problem in a mature manner that does not involve drama, and your life and the other person’s life will be much easier.

There are many things a person can do to at least get rid of their anger with other people or their life in general so that they do not cause harm to other people. Kickboxing is not only a great workout, but a great way to get rid of the anger you feel throughout the day.

If you are a person who is constantly angry, counseling is not a bad idea and can help you relieve stress immensely. Being angry all the time is not healthy and you do not have to deal with that.

Life is hard enough. Be nice to people, solve your problems in a mature fashion and realize that fist fighting never solves anything, and most definitely does not have to happen.

Bizarre news of the day:

Child brings heroin to daycare

A Delaware mother was arrested after her four-year-old daughter brought over 200 bags of heroin to school. A white powdery substance was found inside the bags and was removed by the teachers and taken to the Shelbyville Police Department, where they found the substance to be heroin.

The Delaware mother was arrested after the four-year-old had started to pass them out to other children at a local daycare, thinking they were candy. Delaware State Troopers and medics arrived at the Hickory Tree Child Care Center at 11:45 a.m. Staff at the daycare told police they spotted some children with small bags of an unknown substance.

The 30-year-old woman had given her daughter the bag after her other backpack was ruined by a family pet. Police said 249 bags of heroin weighing 3.735 grams were found inside the backpack.

She is charged with maintaining a drug property and endangering the welfare of a child. She was arraigned and released after posting $6,000 bail. The four-year-old girl as well as her nine-year-old brother and 11-year-old sister were placed in the custody of a relative. The mother can no longer have contact with any of the children.

Get a jump on the holidays by volunteering

By Lexi Abalgore

With November just around the corner, it is getting closer to the holiday season again and as we are getting ready to celebrate with our families, we should also be thinking about those who are less fortunate. Volunteering your time and services to different organizations is a great way to help out needy people in our community. If you are involved in National Honor Society or are a member of the senior class, you will need community service hours. Even if you do not need to, volunteering is beneficial to so many people on multiple spectrums. There are opportunities to volunteer all around us. Here are a few that are close to home.

The Salvation Army is an organization that provides the basic necessities of life to those in need. They run programs such as hunger relief, homeless services, prison ministries and adult rehabilitation. Volunteering with this group is so easy. The easiest thing you can do is to volunteer two hours of your time and ring a bell in a public place (ex. a mall or grocery store). In that one shift, you will help raise enough money for two nights stay and four warm meals for anyone who needs it. You can also help out by volunteering at one of their facilities. In fact, there is one right here in town.

The Food Bank of Central New York is another organization that is always looking for volunteers. You can help out at their facility in Syracuse by sorting non-perishable food items, packaging boxes of food to be shipped to those in need, or even helping out at their events that are held all over CNY. If you are not looking to volunteer your time, something as simple as donating a few cans of food would help.

A final association that you can volunteer with is the Red Cross. G. Ray Bodley hosts blood drives a few times a year. You can help out with these by helping donors get registered and making sure they are comfortable after donating. This includes giving them snacks and making sure they are alright. Other volunteer openings with the Red Cross could be to instruct a CPR or First Aid class or to work at a military hospital giving support to wounded soldiers. For more information or to learn how to get involved, visit the Red Cross website.

Volunteer work is something that can be done all year around. As you can see, most of the chances to work listed above can be done all throughout the year, not just during holiday time. Just imagine how good you will feel sitting down to Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner knowing that you made someone else's holiday better.

What's happening at G. Ray Bodley High School?

Auditions for Quirk's Players musical Thoroughly Modern Millie will be held today from 4 to 8 pm in the auditorium.
